OBJECTIVES

How to minimize the risk of B2B or B2C contacts?

How to prove the company's business credibility?

How to use the credit rating report?

Business information

Information relating to a company's financial standing and ability to meet its obligations is a priority consideration for any business transaction.

Business information companies

Serving a critical role in today's commercial world, business information companies are contributing to the well being and transparency of the overall economy.

Essence of business information

Clients may interrogate business information agencies on-line or by more conventional means.

Data is gathered from public sources, such as company registries, press and courts. Complementing this are the agencies' internal information gathering initiatives, such as direct interviews or payment pattern inputs from creditors. And to quantify business risks and ultimately reduce bad debts, different companies have developed individual analysis systems.
